This was the third installment of the Dhoom series and was followed by Dhoom: The Final Chapter. This installment revolves around the events leading up to the first installment, with Sameer (Ajay Devgn) and Teja (Kareena Kapoor) getting married, but Samyak's (Arjun Rampal) attempts to avenge the death of his wife and Teja's father are foiled by Sameer. The film is based on the American film Sneakers (1992) and is an unofficial remake of it. The film was released on 17 December 2006 to positive reviews and ran for a profitable week, grossing. It was declared a Super Hit at the box office. The film received several award nominations and won two awards. Aditya Chopra won Filmfare Award for Best Director - Hindi and got nominated in other categories, including Filmfare Award for Best Story. Kareena Kapoor received Filmfare Award for Best Female Debut and was nominated for other categories. Arjun Rampal received Filmfare Award for Best Actor – Kannada and was nominated for other categories. The film was ranked the 2nd best film of the year by Box Office India. At the 64th Filmfare Awards, the film received four nominations: Filmfare Award for Best Film, Filmfare Award for Best Director for Aditya Chopra, Filmfare Award for Best Actor for Arjun Rampal, and Filmfare Award for Best Actor Critics for Arjun Rampal. It was the last film to win the four Filmfare Awards in one category. Plot After the events in Dhoom (2004), Sameer and Teja go into hiding. Teja's father, Maan Singh (Sunil Shetty), has been killed by the culprit behind the robberies. A few months later, during the wedding of Sameer and Teja, Inspector Samyak (Arjun Rampal) arrives to arrest them. Before he can arrest them, Teja's brother, Kartik, (Darshan Jariwala) arrives and shoots Samyak before he can arrest them. The police suspect that the boys have committed a crime, but Sameer and Teja are saved by Don Teja (Sanjay Suri), a private detective. The police pursue them through a smuggling route from Dhandhuka airport, through the Ghanchik Topi Pass, to Mumbai. While on their way, Teja catches the eye of Don Teja's girl friend, Maya ( 82157476af
